

Financial health is foundational health

Benefits confusion can be as damaging to health as having no emergency savings, as our recent survey of 5,000 employees across 23 industries reveals.

Financial anxiety is a workplace issue of U.S. workers feel worried or anxious about their finances at least some of the time.

Points lower

Mental Health Index score among workers who always feel anxious about money versus those who never do.

say their financial situation negatively affected productivity in the previous three months.

Cost-of-living pressure is exposing deeper financial insecurity identify cost of living as their leading financial concern.

58%

23%

Lack enough emergency savings to cover basic needs.

Mental Health Index score

53 ↔ 75

without savings

with savings

22-point gap

The same 22-point gap

76 vs. 54

Workers who understand their retirement and savings programs very well vs. those with no understanding.

Benefits confusion can carry the same mental health penalty as having no emergency savings.

How financial stress shows up at work and at home

34%

increased anxiety

23%

disrupted sleep

14%

reduced motivation or engagement

10%

difficulty concentrating at work

3%

missed work

What employers can control

1

Intuitive digital experiences

2

Effective decision support

3

AI-enabled technology

4

Reliable human assistance

Financial health is our focus

Benefits and retirement programs that work across the full hire through retire journey.

Read our online post to learn more.

Source: TELUS Mental Health Index Report, United States, Q2 2026

Retirement & Benefits Solutions

 TELUS® Health